

The open-ended stirrup bar is semi-recessed behind the pommel, but we recommend using the low profile buckle of Bates leathers to avoid bulk under the leg.

The stirrup bar can be swivelled upwards to allow the leather to be easily slipped over the open end.

Push the stirrup leather fully home along the bar – it is angled to help prevent the stirrup leather coming off accidentally.
Pull down firmly on the bottom leather until the buckle is firmly held up against the bar.

Push the end strap through the keeper to keep the buckle securely flat against the bar.